THE ANNEXATION OF PORT HAMILTON.

The London & China Express of April 10th contains an article entitled "The annexation of Port Hamilton" in which the suggestion for the occupation of the islands as a British naval station in the north China sea is attributed to the late Sir Harry Parkes, who is further credited with having reconciled the Chinese government to the annexation.

The occupation of Port Hamilton by the ships of the British squadron did not take place until April 16th; and the resolution was dictated by the necessities of a probable war with Russia. We can state upon unquestionable anthority that until the ships had arrived in Port Hamilton the intention of the English government was unknown to the Queen's ministers at Peking and Tokyo; nor had they any reason to believe that such a step was in contemplation; and we have further excellent authority for assuming that no negotiations of any kind were as has been stated elsewhere entered into with the Chineseor Koreau governments prior to the actual occupation of the islands as a British naval sta-

An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For-comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinase have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and inscionee generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hithorto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not proviously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To the illustrate the vast scope of the work following facts are submitted for consideration.—Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and there elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples themselves it explains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. ESSEX JUNCTION. The friends of Mr. Pholos, who succeeds Mr. Lowell United States Minister in England, point out that both are poste, although the former is not quite so well known as the latter in that capacity. Vermont has a railway station known as Easex Junction, and on this station Mr. Phelos wrote the following clover
